I just bought a 1996 Grumman with a 48 hp SPL Johnson outboard motor. The gas has been sitting in the tank for about 3 years. My uncle told me that I needed to mix oil with the gas and he thought it was a 50:1 ratio. Can anyone out there confirm this? I'm a beginner but... am posting this to help others. My service dealer was booked solid so we tried it. After tearing off the manifold earlier this spring, and cleaning the old carbs the first time, we used the existing rubber o rings on the jets. When we got it all back together it ran at about the 80 percent level, until I took the boat out and then after about two miles the motor died out.
